

Not Behind Lace Curtains: The Hidden World of Evan, Viscount Tredegar

A sensational new book from author William Cross, FSA Scot, (the controversial biographer of Almina, Countess of Carnarvon, and the instigator of lurid tales about other society women) spills the beans on the toffs once again. This time Cross extols on a British Peer of the Realms hidden world of illegal homosexual vice; he even sweeps one British Prime Minister with those involved. The Peers favorite sport was chasing rough trade [rent boys], as well as celebrating Black Mass in Welsh churchyards, and near the Sussex Downs with disciples of The Great Beast 666, the occultist Aleister Crowley. In the end his luck ran out when his right trusty cousin Queen Mary discovered compromising photographs of her family in the mans company.
